UPDATE's Next Issue: January

Don't forget, open forum on presidential search is Wednesday

Just a reminder that students, faculty and staff are invited to an open forum to discuss the criteria and search process for the next University of Memphis president Dec. 4 from 11 a.m. to noon in the University Center River Room. Following the forum, the Search Advisory Committee will hold its first meeting in the Bluff Room of the University Center, beginning at 12:45 p.m. Both meetings are open to the public.

The search committee's charge is to identify three to five finalists who will visit the campus for interviews. Tennessee Board of Regents Chancellor John Morgan will then consult with members of the committee and make a final selection for submission to the TBR for approval.

The committee will work with executive search firm Greenwood/Asher & Associates to help identify a broad range of highly qualified candidates from around the country. One of the committee's first tasks at the Dec. 4 meeting will be to decide on the criteria, schedule and process for identifying the finalists. Initial screening of applicants is expected to begin in February.

U of M and Russian university sign exchange agreement

The Intermodal Freight Transportation Institute (IFTI) hosted a delegation of 20 Russian logistics professionals as part of the International Trade Administration Special American Business Internship Training (SABIT) Program Nov. 18-20.

During the program, the U of M and Volga State Academy of Water Transport signed a memorandum of agreement to hold scientific, educational and cultural exchanges. Dr. Andy Meyers, U of M vice provost for Research, signed the agreement on behalf of Interim President Brad Martin.

IFTI arranged a three-day freight transportation course for the Russian professionals that included time with several IFTI research faculty members to learn about the four modes of transportation and IFTI's research specialties, presentations from the Memphis logistics industry (BNSF, Commercial Advisors, CN Railway, Dunavant Logistics, FedEx, and JAMAC Logistics) and a few technical tours. This is the fourth year that IFTI has hosted a SABIT group.

"We are overwhelmed by the opportunity to solidify this international partnership with a transportation university in Russia. Partnerships like these truly signify the global impact of our research," says Dan Pallme, IFTI interim director. "This agreement impacts our current and future students by expanding their breadth of opportunities."

Support the Million Meals Challenge

Join the Staff Senate in supporting the Million Meals Challenge through Dec. 5. During the 2012 Staff Senate-sponsored food drive, U of M faculty and staff donated 616 pounds of food to the Mid-South Food Bank. You may bring your items to the Holiday Party on Dec. 5 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Administration Building, second floor atrium, or go to <http://themillionmealchallenge.com> and select Memphis to donate online.

Needed items include canned meats, peanut butter, Nutella, jelly and jams, canned fruit, canned vegetables, canned 100 percent fruit juice, boxes of macaroni and cheese, rice, non-perishable items (no glass) and money or gift cards.

Other drop-off locations are: Administration Building, room 165; Ball Hall, second floor by elevator; Fogelman College of Business & Economics, room 400; CCFA Building lobby; McWherter Library, circulation desk area; Mitchell Hall, lobby and room 219; Psychology Building, room 202; Scates Hall, room 107; and Wilder Tower, room 103 (Financial Aid) and room 201 (Scholarship Office).

In 2012, Kroger created the Million Meals Challenge, a contest between the University of Memphis, Ole Miss and Mississippi State and surrounding communities to raise 1 million meals during the academic year. All proceeds collected for the MMC are donated directly to the Mid-South Food Bank and the Mississippi Food Network.

Learn about the Campus Master Plan at open house Dec. 4

SmithGroupJJR, in conjunction with Looney Ricks Kiss Architecture, has been selected to assist in developing the University's next Campus Master Plan. Master planning starts with a process of discovery - understanding all aspects of the University of Memphis: its goals, aspirations, current challenges and opportunities for the future. This stage helps determine the planning vision and principles that guide decision-making throughout the 15-month process.

To that end, the planning team will be on campus this week, and students, faculty, staff and community members are invited to attend one of two Campus Master Plan Open House sessions. This is an opportunity to speak with the planning team at this initial discovery phase and join in the conversation regarding the future development of the U of M.

You may choose one of two sessions. Both will be held Wednesday, Dec. 4, in the University Center Ballroom, from noon to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. To review additional information about the Campus Master Plan and for updates, go to <http://memphis.edu/masterplan/>.
